

GAVE CONCERT TO TIMES-DISPATCH

Second Company Foot Guard Musicians Attract Big Crowd in Main Street.

Several thousand people gathered in front of The Times-Dispatch Building yesterday morning to attend a concert which the band of the Second Company, Governor's Foot Guard, of Connecticut, gave in honor of The Times-Dispatch.

Main Street was crowded from Ninth to Tenth and traffic was suspended. A selection that especially captivated the crowd was a march composed by Bandmaster F. G. Gifford in honor of the Richmond Blues. A selection from George Cohan's "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" had the whole crowd beating time.

Drum major, W. G. Doherty, a fine, soldierly man, who is Police Commissioner of New Haven, said that this was the greatest pliancy that the command had ever made, and that there was not an officer, a member of the band or a man in the ranks who did not feel honored in coming to Virginia.

A complete roster of the organization follows:

Drum major, W. G. Doherty; leader, F. G. Gifford; solo cornet, George Heyer, assistant solo cornet with Pryor's Band; solo cornet, H. E. Button, M. Sakolaf, A. Calleno, H. Japson, F. Melrose; solo clarinet, O. C. Vogenitz, H. Benson, S. Cooke, J. Eisenman (formerly with Inness's Band); C. Jullian, J. Walters, T. Flagg, piccolo, N. C. Strouse, soloist; trombone, E. A. Daniels, I. Stannard (soloist); N. Cartier, George Chesley (crack rifle shot of the world); J. Mayley; horn, F. Dupuy, P. Schirmer, A. Post; baritone, M. Tullio; tuba, A. Ekehait, N. Martino, C. Heldman; drums, J. B. Moore (xylophone soloist); W. Ballan, Henry P. Menzes, manager of band and leader at Polli's Theatre, New Haven, Conn.; Earl Upson, messenger.

DAZZLING SIGHT WILDLY CHEERED BY THOUSANDS

Joseph Le Masurier, adjutant of Blues Battalion, chief of staff, Captain E. Kent Hubbard, First Company of Governor's Foot Guard, Hartford; Captain H. L. Evans, Second Company of Governor's Foot Guard, New Haven; First Lieutenant Bruce D. Armour, Providence; Light Infantry, Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas R. McAdams, A. J. Gray and Carroll L. Kidd, Governor Mann's staff; Lieutenant-Colonel Jo Lane Stern, assistant inspector-general; Major Lawrence T. Price, First Virginia Infantry; Captain T. M. Wainman, adjutant of First Battalion of Field Artillery; and Captain Giles B. Cook, Medical Corps, Virginia Volunteers.

Next came the Blues' Band, followed by the three companies of that organization, each in command of its captain, the whole under the direction of Major E. W. Bowles.

Order of Parades. Following the hosts of the affair were the members of the First Company of Governor's Foot Guard, preceded by their band. All of the bands marched continuously on the line of march. Next in the parade came the New Haven Company. To all appearances, without making any invidious distinctions where all was so praiseworthy, this company's band perhaps pleased its hearers the best.

The flags of the United States and of Rhode Island led the way for the Providence troops. Following them came the carriages. The first contained Governor Frank B. Weeks, of Connecticut; the second, Governor Aram J. Pothier, of Rhode Island; the third, a few members of these executives' parties; and the fourth, Governor William Hodges Mann, of Virginia, followed by the members of his official staff. A line of private carriages and automobiles brought up the rear.

From Franklin and Fifth to the Lee Monument on Monument Avenue the route lay. Doubling back on the monument the line returned, circled the Stuart Monument and went up Lombardy Street to Broad and thence to

Free Sample For Baby's Ills

Something can and must be done for the puny, crying baby, for the child that refuses to eat and is restless in its sleep. And since the basis of all health is the working of the digestive organs, look first to the condition of the stomach and bowels.

A child should have two full and free movements of the bowels a day. This emptying of the bowels is very important, as with it comes a clear head, a lightness of step, good appetite and sound sleep. But it is equally important to know what to give the child in the emergency of constipation and indigestion. Cathartics are too strong and salts and other purgatives are not only too strong, but the child refuses them because of their bad taste. Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It is a liquid tonic that families have been using for a quarter of a century. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and promptly effective. It is good for you as well as the child, but there is nothing better to be found for children. They like its taste—you will not have to force them to take it.

First of all, if you have not yet used it, Dr. Caldwell would like to send you a sample bottle free of charge. In this way you can try it before buying. Later, when convinced of its merits, you can get it of your druggist at four cents and one dollar a bottle, just as thousands of other families are doing. The family of Mr. D. W. Spangler, of Strattonville, Pa., as well as that of Mr. A. E. Johnson, of Walnut Grove, Tenn., started with it in that way, and now write that it is their one family necessity next to food itself. If you are unfortunate enough to have a sickly child, one eleven to constitution, indigestion, you should send for a free sample of this remedy.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R-237, Caldwell Building, Monticello, Ill.

SCENES ALONG LINE OF GREAT MILITARY PARADE

the ball ground. By the time of its arrival the hour of 5:30 had arrived.

Manoeuvres at Park. The bicycle police and a detail of mounted police entered the field first, clearing it and keeping the people within bounds. The Blues' Band marched straight to the northwest corner of the park, while the Battalion made a turn to the east, marching in front of the grandstand, where it was cheered to the echo.

When the New Haven band came it scored a point by playing Southern melodies, including "Old Black Joe," "Swanee River" and others. But the Providence band went it one better by coming down the field to the tune of "Dixie." If anything more were needed to bring that part of the crowd which was sitting down, to its feet, this was it.

In a few moments the carriages conveying the distinguished guests came in and were driven to the middle of the field. After a short rest, the carriages were driven to the grandstand, where the Governors and their parties alighted and went to reserved seats. The carriages retired to the northeast corner, over where the Richmond team doesn't always knock out home runs. The drill and manoeuvres then began.

The Blues were at the west of the field and the other commands to the east. In front of the centre of the grandstand were the officers and the colors. As each order was executed the applause was vigorous.

March Around Field. After the usual orders, obeyed by all the men at once, the direction was given "column right." The Blues leading, a march was made around the field, some of the troops executing a double quick march. Any of the spectators who may have thought that the heavy soldiers from the North couldn't chase an enemy at a faster rate than a walk found themselves mistaken. During this work the New Haven band occupied the centre of the field, playing constantly.

Suddenly the ranks were skillfully opened, and through them dashed the carriages, heading toward the grandstand. This was the signal for an end to the festivities, and the crowd broke for the gates.

Not so many people saw the return of the troops, yet good sized crowds lined the sidewalks. The route was on Grace Street as far as Adams, and then on Broad to Sixth, opposite the armory. At Fifth and Broad the men were reviewed by the chief marshal and his staff.

BIG RECEPTION ENDS FESTIVITY

New Armory Dedicated by Dancers Without Formal Ceremony.

In a reception dance last night at the new armory of the Blues' Battalion, to which the costumes of the women added to the brilliancy of colorings which was the feature of the affair, the Governors and their parties were brought to the festivities in honor of the guests. Early this morning the visitors will board trains bound for their homes in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

The affair took place in the enormous drill hall of the armory, which was crowded with dancers and with onlookers. So dense was the crowd that the grand march which had been proposed was called off. One attempt was made to carry out this part of the program, the Governor and his staff and the officers going downstairs to form the line, but because of the crush and of the difficulty of getting the march in shape, it had to be abandoned.

From the balcony Governor and Mrs. Mann, with a distinguished company, viewed the gay scene below.

With scores of couples on the floor at a time, the space was very limited. The reception and dance were entirely informal, there being no committee of introduction, nor any formal method of introductions. Nor did the crowd seem to care especially for dancing. It was more intent on chatting and on having a generally big time. This was apparently accomplished.

Refreshments were served amidship of the building, but this was nothing new, since it has been the general order since early Monday morning.

With the pretty decorations, and the dress of the soldiers, the civilians and their fair partners and the hum of hundreds of voices, the scene presented was one of vivacity and bright coloring.

Present Bronze Tablet.

In memory of the special visits which have been exchanged by the Richmond Blues and their brethren from the North, two memorials were presented yesterday afternoon, to be placed in the new armory. From the First Company of Governor's Foot Guard came a bronze tablet, on which is inscribed the dates of the alternate visits, while the Second Company presented an album containing the photographs of the members of the New Haven organization, with a set of newspaper clippings containing articles and pictures covering the visit of the Blues to the Nymeg State.

The bronze tablet was presented by Major L. R. Cheney, a former commander of the First Company. Major E. W. Bowles accepted the memorial in a short speech.

These affairs took place at the luncheon given by the Blues at the armory. There was an abundance of everything to eat and drink. In a short address breathing the kindest feelings between the soldiers of the North and the South, Major George T. Hewitt, commanding the New Haven company, presented the memorial album.

Among those present were Governors Weeks, Pothier and Mann.

FRAUD ALLEGED IN BUYING LAND

Two Appeals Allowed by Supreme Court in Interesting Cases.

Appealing from a decision in a suit in which charges of fraud in the transfer of property were made, Mrs. Ellen Ford and her son, J. P. Ford, were yesterday granted a writ of error by the Supreme Court of Appeals from a judgment of the Circuit Court of Henrico county. It was alleged by T. W. Chelf, the plaintiff in the lower court, that J. P. Ford used his money to buy property in his mother's name with the intent to hinder, delay and defraud his creditors.

T. W. Chelf brought the suit to have set aside a certain deed of conveyance made to Mrs. Ford by John Howard, Jr., a special commissioner in charge for the Chancery Court of the city of Richmond. The Henrico court set aside the deed and subjected the property to the demands of the creditors of J. P. Ford.

Borrowed Much Money. J. P. Ford is a contractor of this city, the evidence tending to show that his father, E. P. Ford, set him up in business. He built some houses on West Cary Street, near Strawberry Street, on lots owned by him. After borrowing, he says, all he could on this property, he still had not enough to pay for labor and material, and borrowed the remainder from his father. Later he bought two lots on Park Avenue and built houses Nos. 2438 and 2440. The total cost of these houses and lots was $9,140. On them he borrowed $7,500, securing $1,342 additional from his father.

These transactions are cited to show that Ford had no money of his own, and that when these properties were sold under the deeds of trust he had no surplus with which to buy the Henrico real estate. He agreed, it seems, to buy a part of the Glazebrook farm, near Laurel, at the price of $1,061. Within a few days he became ill and his mother bought them instead. She testified that she had saved the money from her own work and the sale of poultry and other products. The lower court, however, seems to have thought differently.

Old Judgment Questioned. Another appeal was granted in the case of E. W. Manson and J. R. Shell against the executor of the will of W. P. Rawlings, and the devisees under said will. This case comes from the Circuit Court of Brunswick county.

Manson and Shell, it is alleged, secured a judgment against Rawlings, which was paid out of moneys in the hands of a commissioner, amounting to $507.08. The executor brought suit to compel the return of this amount on the ground that no such judgment had ever been confessed. The lower court directed the money to be returned with interest from February, 1906.

It is shown by the record that the original papers of the suit were not found in the clerk's office, and that there was no memorandum of confession. On the other hand, it is argued that an entry by the clerk on the judgment lien docket and the issuance of two executions is proof of the judgment.

Prof. Winston on Halley's Comet
Tells College Students That Nebular Visitor Is Like Long-Lost Brother.

Prof. Charles H. Winston lectured on Halley's Comet last evening before an audience which filled the chapel of Richmond College to overflowing. The lecture attempted to answer many of the questions which are now being asked in regard to the celestial visitor, or since the comet has been coming regularly for as long as man has any records, he may regard himself as a member of the solar family and one might more properly speak of him as "a long-absent brother."

"What, then, is a comet?" asked Prof. Winston. "The head of a comet is 40,000 to 150,000 miles in diameter, yet its mass is only one hundred-thousandth of that of the earth. So its density is one six-thousandth of that of air, and the tail is incomparably lighter still. It is indeed as much lighter than air as air is lighter than granite. A comet, then, is a nebulous haze of immense size. There are some 800 comets known, and the orbits of some 400 have been computed."

By means of a flexible tube the lecturer explained how the planets have nearly circular orbits, while the orbits of the comets are either ellipses or open curves. If they are the latter the comets are truly visitors, for although they are attracted by the sun, their own motion causes them to go away never to return.

A photograph was shown of Donati's Comet with great knots in the tail. The matter making up the tail is repelled from the comet, perhaps due to the pressure exerted by the sun's light, and this matter recedes from the comet with tremendous velocity. Then the comet changes its appearance rapidly from day to day. Since the earth is to pass through the tail of Halley's Comet, it was interesting to observe that several stars could be seen through the tail, although the tail was a million miles thick.

Word About Halley.

The lecturer then gave some facts in regard to Halley, the coworker with Newton. He was born in 1656 and died in 1742. The law of gravitation had been discovered by Newton, so Halley occupied himself by calculating the orbits of various comets. Halley found that some of them had the same orbit and came only seventy-five years apart, so he concluded that these were all one and the same comet. He was so sure of his belief that he predicted just when the comet, which now bears his name, might be expected. There are over eighty comets now known which return with regularity. About a dozen have a period of over 100 years.

The lecturer then told how to find
